Whereas each State has a move over law, which has correlated directly with a safer environment on the roads and along the roadsides of the United States for traffic incident management responders and stranded travelers;

Whereas move over laws generally require motorists to move at least one lane over when there is an emergency or rescue activity taking place, including on the shoulder or side of the roadway, or, if unable to do so safely, to slow down and pass the scene with caution;

Whereas the Government Accountability Office report entitled “Roadside Safety: DOT Should Update Public Awareness Materials on Move Over Laws” (GAO–24–106216) stated that available resources affect States’ abilities to raise public awareness of their move over laws; and

Whereas providing traffic incident management responders with an enhanced opportunity to inform the motoring public about move over laws is critical to the public safety: Now, therefore, be it
